TWO DIE; HITLER RISE FOLLOWED BY BLOODSHED

Reds and Hitler Supporters
Clash After A Victory
Parade

PAPER IS CONFISCATED

10 Wounded; Many Arrested for Attempting a Demonstration

By Edward L. Deuss
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—(INS).—Two persons died today as bloodshed, violence and protests followed elevation of Adolf Hitler, Nazi leader and one-time expatriate, to the Chancellorship of the Reich.

One Nazi was shot and killed and a Communist was hopelessly wounded in clashes between Reds and supporters of Hitler as the latter were marching home after their jubilant victory parade.

The Communist newspaper, Die Rote Fahne, was confiscated as the new Chancellor took his first drastic step against his enemies, the Communists. It was announced the newspaper was taken over because it "proclaimed" a general strike.

Communists in the Ruhr district also distributed leaflets urging a strike, but no workers took their advice.

Ten persons were slightly wounded and 20 were arrested, as were 13 other Communists for attempting to demonstrate.

A policeman was shot to death by a sniper in the western section of the city. Police said the bullet, evidently intended for a Nazi, was fired from a window.

Sections of Berlin were strewn with Communist handbills, urging a general strike as protest against the Hitler ministry.

Nazis, Socialists and Communists engaged in a free-for-all at Königsberg, and knives flashed during a Nazi demonstration at Manneheim.

Scenes of wild joy were enacted in Coburg City and throughout Thuringia, the national Socialist strongholds.

Nazi officials were overjoyed at the achievement by Hitler of his life's ambition.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels told International News Service:

"Germany will be a Fascist state within 60 days. We have fulfilled a 13-year battle."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the Reichsbank, declared:

"Hitler is the surest guarantee that all private debts to America will be paid to the last cent. His appointment represents a new era in German history. We have turned the corner. The world will now see an unprecedented German re-ascendancy."

"I even venture to say that a Germany headed by Hitler will be a boon to the whole world."

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 31.—(INS).—Former Kaiser Wilhelm and the former crown prince of Germany have received the news of Adolf Hitler's appointment as Chancellor of the Reich with great satisfaction. International News Service learned today.

It was disclosed reliably that the two members of the German royal family believe Hitler will be able to "restore law and order in Germany."

The crown prince is now visiting his father at Doorn Castle, the Kaiser's place of exile.

ITALY TO DISCUSS DEBTS
Rome, Italy, Jan. 31.—The Italian Ambassador at Washington was instructed today to notify the United States Government that Italy plans to send a delegation to Washington to discuss war debts. Italy, it was said, will be "glad" to negotiate the debts with the United States.

MRS. DI SILVESTRO BURIED

Phila., Jan. 31.—While thousands of curious milled outside, funeral services were held in St. Rita's Catholic Church today for Mrs. John DiSilvestro, victim of the bomb believed planted by anti-Fascists which wrecked the home of her husband, prominent Italian-American leader, last Saturday morning. Numerous floral tributes, including those of Benito Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, were banded high around the grave in Holy Cross Cemetery. Meanwhile, authorities, spurred on by the $15,000 in reward, continued their intensive investigation into the bombing. Investigation thus far has disclosed that at least four and a half pounds of dynamite, a terrific charge, was contained in the bomb.

EXPECT DEBT MISSION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 31.—A British debt mission will arrive in Washington to begin negotiations with the Roosevelt administration before the inauguration of the new President, cleared away in Pennsylvania avenue, President-elect Roosevelt told Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, who he hoped to begin negotiations immediately after he assumes office and March 5-6 was set for the tentative date for the parley to open.

Sir Ronald left Washington today for New York. He will sail at midnight for London to make arrangements and report to his government. The Ambassador will take to London with him a fairly comprehensive outline of the Rooseveltian policy concerning the amelioration of the $4,500,000,000 British debt, gleaned in their Sunday conference in the Georgia mountains. For one thing he is going to report that it will be useless for a British mission to come to Washington prepared to discuss the debt question alone, as the British government desires to do. He will report that the incoming President is insistent that the envoys be qualified and empowered to discuss economic questions with the new American administration. "The President-elect told me a lot of things which I expect to report to my government," was the Ambassador's laconic reply to questions. He declined to become more specific. It was learned however, that Mr. Roosevelt furnished the British envoy with what was an effort in effect of a three-point program which the London government must be prepared to discuss.

BUILDING OPERATIONS PROGRESS, S. LANGHORNE

Work Well Under Way For
New Quarters of American Store

PAPER PLANT ENLARGED

SOUTH LANGHORNE, Jan. 31.—A local contractor has the work of remodeling the business block of Rev. Fr. R. P. Phelan well under way, in preparation for the occupancy of part of the building by the American Stores Company. A basement will be excavated under the new part. The materials used are concrete blocks.

Both former occupants of the two stores have moved to new quarters. Harry Simons has taken his radio and electric business to his residence on the old Lincoln Highway, near the Parkland road, and the Marinello Beauty Parlors have gone to part of John Devlin's double house, at 138 South Bellevue avenue.

Another building operation is well under way in South Langhorne, that of the addition to the south end of the Enterprise Wall Paper Company plant, which is being taken care of by another local contractor. When this is completed, the builder will construct an addition of the same material to the north end of the same plant. The latter addition will be one story in height, 41 x 98, and will have a basement under it.

TO DECORATE VETERANS, NEWTOWN SPENT ON PURPLE HEART MEDAL STREETS TOTAL OF $4300

Ceremony Will Be Sponsored By Schumacher Post,
V. F. W.

ON FEBRUARY 22ND APPROPRIATION OF $25

A beautiful ceremony officially decorating veterans of the World War with the Medal of the Purple Heart will take place in the hall of Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour, February 22nd.

This ceremony is sponsored by Joseph A. Schumacher Post, 1597, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Croydon, and is under the direction of Post Commander T. D. B. Tanner and his staff.

The medal of the Purple Heart is one of the most cherished decorations bestowed by the U. S. Government and is ranked among the highest that is given as it can only be received by a soldier who has been wounded in action on the battlefield. It was originally bestowed by General George Washington personally upon his soldiers, therefore it is befitting that this ceremony be held on the birthday of the Father of our country.

An invitation is extended to all veterans in this district who have secured this medal and who have not been officially decorated to get in touch with Commander Tanner at his home, 231 Lafayette street, telephone 2519 or at the post home, Croydon. Any veteran who has not secured his decoration to date upon calling upon Commander Tanner will be taken care of whether he belongs to any veteran organization or not and efforts will be made to secure decoration for him.

The Joseph A. Schumacher Post Junior cadet drum and bugle corps, which was organized about five months ago, is progressing to the gratification of officers and members of the Post who are sponsoring the corps.

At present there are 62 boys, ranging from nine to 14 years who at first knew practically nothing about drum and bugle work, and who now under the able direction of Commander William Keene, Jr., Lieut. Commander F. Tochterman, Quartermaster Devos and Bugle Instructor Thomas Stewart, have reached such a point of efficiency that they are nearly ready for street work.

It is the intention of the sponsors and the corps to participate in next Memorial Day services, along with Robert Bracken Post, American Legion, thereby augmenting the musical program somewhat. To this end the boys are at present campaigning for funds to purchase uniforms. Anyone desiring to assist can do so by getting in touch with any of the above mentioned officers at the post home, Croydon, or with Post Commander Tanner.

All Trains Electrically Driven Starting Tomorrow

It is announced by the Pennsylvania Railroad that commencing tomorrow all trains on the Philadelphia-New York run will be drawn by electric locomotives.

There are now 1450 miles of tracks under electric operation by the P. R. R. system. The density of train movements over the line from Philadelphia to New York gives that stretch, it is said, the distinction of carrying the heaviest passenger traffic in the world for a similar line.

The same number of men will be required for the train crew of an electrically-drawn train as for a steam train, a company official announced.

All controls and signal devices are installed on board an electric locomotive in the same position as they occupy on a steam engine, thus requiring very little expense in familiarizing an engineer with operation of such.

Phila., Jan. 31.—More than 1200 men and women from all ranks of life, after an enthusiastic mass meeting last night, today, through a committee of three, demanded of the State Legislature a "fair, square, decent and reasonable" legislation of the Sunday blue laws of 1794. The committee, comprised of Councilman W. W. Roper; Councilman Edward A. Kelly and Adolph Hirschberg, president of the Central Labor Union, carried that message to Harrisburg today, where hearings are scheduled on House Bill No. 1, the "Blue Law" modifier, introduced by Rep. Louis Schwartz of Philadelphia.

The laws of 1794, which Roper said originally were passed to pacify a Providence which had inflicted a deadly plague on the city, were attacked from all sides at the meeting last night.

450 SEE THIRD WARD IN FOURTH STRAIGHT WIN

Two Extra Periods Needed in Close Fray; Score Ends

DAVID SCORES NINE

(By T. M. Juno)

Before the largest crowd of the season, the Third Ward A. C. captured its fourth straight victory of the second half, defeating the Paterson Parchment Paper Company, 23-21, in a fray which was so close that two extra periods were needed before the winner could be decided.

The crowd of 450 filled all corners of the Italian Mutual Aid Court and extra seats were placed about the playing floor so close that special out-of-bounds rules were made by the officials of the league. The closeness of the tilt kept the spectators on their feet during the entire length of time and cheering was at its height throughout the fifty minutes of playing.

At regulation time the score was 19-19 and at the first extra session the Paper Makers scored a point which gave them a slight edge, but according to intercollegiate rules a team must win by more than one point during an extra period, so another five minute period was played. During the second extra session the Warders counted four points while the Paper Mill club could only score one.

It was Edmund Dugan who pulled the fray out of fire for the downtown aggregation. Dugan had one of the best guards in the league watching him last night, and during the regulation number of minutes his man, Spadaccio, limited him to but two foul shots and nary a field goal, which was remarkable defensive work. During the second extra session, Dugan sank a field goal from the center of the court and then when fouled scored two more points to give the Warders their margin of victory.

"Vin" Sawickie had put the Paper Makers in the lead in the first extra minutes by scoring a foul shot and also counted the only marker scored by his club in the second extra session. Sawickie played a bang-up game last evening and was instrumental in the breaking up of the Third Ward passing system.

Larry David was high scorer for the winning aggregation with nine points. David also did the necessary passing in the aiding of the counting of other points during the milling.

With fifteen seconds remaining of the regulation game, the Paper Mill team enjoyed a 19-18 lead, but in trying to score a double-decker, "Jimmy" Lake was fouled and tied the score on the first free throw. But with a chance to be a hero, Lake missed the second try, forcing the game into the extra periods.

At no time did either team have more than a four-point advantage and the lead changed different hands about six times. The Warders had their backs against the wall and things looked mighty dark for them several times.

DIAMONDS, WATCH SECURED AS MAN HOLDS UP CLERK

Enters Store of Virginia Snow
Cleaners and Dyers,
Here

ROBS MRS. BAUROTH

Armed Thief Escapes With $2 and Jewelry; No Trace of Thief as Yet

A hold-up man who entered a Mill street business establishment early last evening and demanded that the young woman in charge "Stick 'em up," escaped with a wrist-watch, and a pocketbook containing two diamond rings and about $2 in cash.

The hold-up occurred at the store of Virginia Snow Cleaners and Dyers, 202 Mill street, and the woman robbed is Mrs. Harry Bauroth, 346 Jackson street, who has been employed there for over three years.

It was at about 6:10 as Mrs. Bauroth was completing her daily records that a man entered the place and advanced to the counter at the rear.

"Stick 'em up," was the command, but not taking in just what the man said Mrs. Bauroth asked: "Is there anything I can do for you?"

"Yes, Stick 'em up." With that a gun was pointed at the clerk.

"Harry," called Mrs. Bauroth, resigning that her husband was in the building.

As she called, the thief leaped at her, grabbed her left wrist and tore her watch off. He also secured her hand-bag in which Mrs. Bauroth had just deposited two diamond rings before washing her hands. The bag also contained about $2 in cash.

The woman screamed, and with that the man made for the street and dashed up Cedar street.

Hearing Mrs. Bauroth scream Mr. and Mrs. Robert Welk whose business establishment adjoins the Virginia Snow store, went to her assistance. Mrs. Bauroth was considerably unnerved by her experience, and unable to give a detailed description of the man. He is described by his victim as being about five feet, eight inches, in height. He wore a light plaid cap which he had pulled down over one eye. His overcoat was of a dark mixed material.

Bristol police were summoned and Chief Jones and his officers searched the heart of the business district in which the affair occurred. Residents of the section were questioned to learn if anyone saw the gun-man loitering about.

It is presumed an automobile was parked on Cedar street for a quick get-away.

ROBINS AND WEATHER

Reports from the Temperate Zone of intemperate winter habits of robins seen in January do not prove that spring is just around the corner. Spring is never as slow in turning the corner as prosperity has been but neither does it run as far ahead of schedule as the robin prophets would have one believe.

There is nothing mysterious or remarkable about these January reports of the first robin. In the first place not all those robins are robins. There is a certain type of human imagination which can make a robin out of any bird of comparable size, especially against the crimson background of sunrise or sunset.

But robins have been known to visit the land of snow and sub-zero weather in the dead of winter when they are supposed to be luxuriating in the South. There is nothing so very remarkable in that. Many robins winter within a few hours' flight of their summer morning grounds, making week-end trips home easily possible when weather permits. And then there is the possibility of being carried North by storms.

People believe in such weather signs because they want to believe in them. The wish is father of the thought. When wintry winds blow away the coal pile one is prone to grasp at the slenderest hope of an unseasonably early spring. So prematurely early robins are seen in the early morning and other signs of an early spring are found.

UNRELIABLE MEMORY

Present conditions are conducive to lurid forecasts dealing with the "breakdown" of the existing economic order, the increasingly "precarious" condition of the majority of the people and the menace of special visitations like "technological unemployment." The country is full of pessimists predicting everything from revolution to wholesale starvation. Many of these never expect to see good times again.

Against such pictures of a world rapidly going to the dogs it is useful to take a look back into the past. Are the "unprecedented" phenomena really so unheard of as people assert? Have the industrial nations, over a long stretch of years, been going forward or backward?

Men and women, who have gone through other depressions, describe this one as all the others rolled into one. It may be but the human memory is notoriously unreliable and especially prone to forget the dark pages in life's history.

There are reasons why this crash should be more far reaching and complete. In the first place the nation's population increased by many millions between this and the preceding depression. And in the second place the country had never before attained such a high peak of prosperity.

Humpty Dumpty had a great fall but don't believe them when they say that all the king's horses and all the king's men can't put him together again.

The world's all wrong. The old car won't survive another vacation trip and the bankroll won't survive a new car.

Hollywood says the vogue of the horror film is but a transient phase. And yet since the first film a large percentage have been horrible.

THE CHALLENGE OF LOVE

by WARWICK DEEPING

CHAPTER FIFTY-SEVEN

Dusk was falling when Wolfe mounted Turpin in the stable-yard behind the white house at Eve's Corner. He had spent the afternoon in packing his clothes, instruments, and books, and in stripping the surgery shelves of bottles, ointment pots and phials. All these latter he stored away in the big hampers he had kept in the coach-house. He had unscrewed the brass-plate from the gate, cleaned it, and packed it away among his clothes. Such munitions of war might prove very useful in the future.

"I'll tell the carrier to call for my luggage, and the hampers."

Mrs. Loosely stood at the back door, a long, sad, meagre figure, a white shawl over her shoulders.

"I can't help feeling sorry you are going, sir. It was a kind of a comfort having a doctor in the house."

Lamps were being lit as Wolfe rode Turpin down Peachy Hill. Raw draughts blew down the lanes and passages. In the market-place the rickety coach that ran to and fro from Warrington station had just pulled up outside the porch of the "White Hart." Seen through the grizzle the lamps were blurred yellow circles. Wolfe recalled that night nearly two years ago when he had climbed down from the coach over yonder. It had been raining then, and he remembered the puddles and the hazy, wind-blown lamps.

Turning into Bridge Street he rode down towards the river. The narrow street was empty, the doors of the houses shut, the blinds drawn. Turpin's hoofs made a hollow sound on the cobbles, but not a soul saw John Wolfe ride by. He reached the bridge over the Wraith, reined in there a moment, and sat looking at the black water sliding sluggishly under the diffused light thrown by the solitary lamp that burned upon the bridge. Presently he rode on and out of Navestock.

The mud of the lowland roads changed to the sharper, sandier texture of the moor. Wolfe saw a light away towards his right, a mere spark in the midst of the blackness. Something white rose up beside the road. It was the white gate leading into the Moor Farm paddock.

The spark of light came from a lantern hung in the red-brick stable where John Munday was looking to his cart-horses. He came clattering out when Turpin's hoofs rang on the rough road leading into the yard.

"Be't you, Mr. Wolfe?"

"I'll leave Turpin with you, John. You'll be able to find room for him?"

"There be his old stall waiting."

Wolfe dismounted, and passed the old man the bridle, patting the horse's neck before he turned to go.

"A dirty night, John."

"It be that, sir. Reckon I'd like to see a bit o' real winter soon."

Wolfe passed round the holly hedges towards the garden gate. The rain thickened and made a faint hissing sound as it fell upon the holly leaves. Level rays of light from the windows streamed out into the darkness. The great cypresses sighed as Wolfe passed under them.

He found himself holding Mary Mascall's hands in the hall where the brass lantern, hanging from a beam, spread out the light between its bars. Mary Mascall's eyes searched his. He spoke little more than six words to her, and saw that she understood. His face, wet with the rain, was gaunt, proud, but weary.

"Come in to the fire, John. Something made me keep our tea waiting. There's a plate of buttered

"I must make a fresh start, Mother. I am not quite the beggar I was two years ago," John went on.

toast on the table. Give me your coat, lad; I'll have it dried in the kitchen."

She saw the gratitude in his eyes. "Don't let Jess know yet, Mother."

"Of course not, lad. Just you sit down and get warm."

She watched the firelight playing upon his face. "I must make a fresh start, Mother. I am not quite the beggar I was two years ago. I have saved about a hundred and fifty pounds down there."

Mary Mascall's hands lay restfully on her knees.

"I'm a woman of some capital, John."

He glanced at her sharply. "No, Mother, I'd not take it, even as a loan."

She smiled tolerantly.

"There, how you fly out! You'll have it some day, unless Jess and I quarrel."

"Let it stay at that. We are young, both of us. A man must carve out his own corner. I don't want mine bought for me—by friends."

Mary Mascall put more wood on the fire. A cloud of sparks flew up, and vanished into the black throat of the chimney.

"Let the news wait a week. I can go out and pretend I am busy in Navestock. If you'll let me stay on for a fortnight—"

"Of course, John, that's a great favour to ask, surely!"

"Say, till Christmas is over, I'll tell Jess when she is a little stronger. Mother, I have got to do something. I have got to wipe this out of her heart."

Mary Mascall got up, and kissed him.

"God bless me, John," she said, with her hands on his shoulders; "Navestock's a mere bit of a puddle. You can't swim there. You're much too big."

Letter from Ursula Brandon to John Wolfe.

Florence, Dec. 23, 19—

Dear Mr. Wolfe: I have had a full account sent me of all that the little people have been doing in Navestock. Even your beloved poor did not prove themselves marvellous of sentimental loyalty and gratitude. I think I dislike the English poor a little more than I did six months ago—if that were possible.

I am writing to remind you that you are our doctor at "Pardons," that is to say, if you decide to stay in the neighbourhood. My impression is that you will shake off the dust and be gone.

Now—for our dear bourgeoisie—and the mob! Let me talk freely. Why should a man of great ability—and with some ambition—waste himself upon inferior people? It is a sort of fashion at times to stand in awed admiration before the "patient poor," and to sneer and hurl accusations of immorality and selfishness at the aristocrats. Believe me—there was never greater nonsense. I know something of horses and of men. Breed is everything. We better-bred animals know how to restrain ourselves. We learn to sneer a little, but we become too clear-eyed to be hypocrites. The English—in the mass—are barbarians. Heaven defend me from the comfortable, consequential dullness of the respectable middle classes.

Being a woman I can stand aside and look on with some amusement. With a man it is different. He has to shoulder the world. Therefore beware of inferior people. Inferiority means a mean way of looking at life. Little people of judging motives. Little people are spiteful, pretentious, ever ready to fall into absurd little rages about nothing.

You ought to be busy with big things, big men, big ideas. You are too strong to fight with the little people in a provincial town. You hurt them, without meaning it, and then they go about, furtively, to hurt you in return. I do not believe all that the religionists say about love and self-sacrifice. They may be good for slaves—but a big man cannot live and work among little men, when he has pride and a staunch soul. It must lead to the inevitable disgust, cynicism, and scorn. Big men walk often with bare feet; so the little men spread thorns.

If I seem to write as a prig and a worldly one—I write as a friend. I am glad that Jess is out of danger. She is not little. She should help you in the future.

Believe me ever truly yours,

Ursula Brandon.

CUTS YOUR "COLDS-TAX"

BEHIND the SCENES in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL.

Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

HOLLYWOOD, . . . "Nine o'clock on the set! That means getting up at 6:30!"

Plainly dismayed, Peggy Hopkins Joyce yesterday discussed with me the hours she must keep as a talking picture star for the Paramount studio.

The scene of our talk was dressing - room 116 (Marilyn Dietrich and Maurice Chevalier are just down the way).

The time was 2 P. M. I perched on a stool while Peggy sat before a dressing-table and allowed a studio hair-dresser to arrange her famous blonde locks. They were quite damp at the moment. As the girl slipped a black net over them and adjusted the turban-like hair-dryer, Peggy smiled.

"You are the first man," she said, "who ever saw me getting my hair done."

Just then the dryer started. To the tune of its steady hum (we sometimes had to shout), the interview continued.

"In New York," exclaimed Peggy, "I sleep till 11 o'clock. Why, it takes me half an hour to get my eyes open. I don't see how they expect anyone to look their best so early in the morning."

"How about night life? Parties?" I shouted.

"How can I?" answered Peggy. "Back east I have to have 8 or 9 hours' sleep. Here I'm even sleepier. There'll be no time for me to entertain or go out much, anyway, not until after my picture. This is my first, you know, and I'm nervous."

"What do you think of Hollywood men?"

"Don't know. Haven't met any but Joseph M. Schenck, Sidney Blackmer and a few others I already knew. But I'd like to meet some more."

"When will you get around to it?" I shouted.

"You tell me!" she exclaimed. A few minutes later, as I left, George Raft came up and knocked on the door.

A group of us were having lunch at R-K-O when a certain writer came in with a girl. Jack Townley snapped:

"That fellow is so crazy about Katharine Hepburn that he even has lunch with her double."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE.

If you can believe Ann Harding, she did not see Harry Bannister, did not even attend his play while she was in the east. . . . Ran into Marlene Dietrich yesterday at Paramount. She wants me to say she is not trying to set a style with her trousers. "I want to wear them myself, not to get other women to!" she exclaimed. It's a good deal easier to talk to the German star these days. She is less distrustful, and more friendly. And she seems very pleased about starting her picture on Monday.

If Hoot Gibson can get away, he and Sally Eilers will take a trip to Havana after her new picture is finished. The canal trip is constantly gaining in popularity with the film folks. And they all are keen about the stopover in Cuba. . . . Janet Gaynor, who has been voyaging in the other direction, will return from Honolulu February 6 to start "Adorable." . . . Aline Carroll and Andy Devine are still seeing the sights together. They were at the fights the other evening. . . . Very funny to see Sylvia Sydney lunching at Paramount in a flannel nightgown. . . . Now it's to be Patricia Ellis instead of Kay Francis in "Narrow Corner."

Most of the orchestra leaders' town dropped in late at the Club Ballyhoo to pay honor to Ted Fio-r-i-to—Phil Harris, from the Coconut Grove; Gus Arnheim, from the Beverly Wilshire; Harold Grayson, from the Roosevelt. Nacio Herb Brown, Con Conrad and several other composers also attended.

And you should hear Bert Wheeler tell his new baby story. Between Sammy Walsh (formerly of Chicago), Wheeler, Lew Cody, Robert Woolsey, John P. Medbury and the rest it was an evening not to miss. Ginger Rogers, Mervyn Leroy, Florine McKinney and Nat Goldstone stopped in for a while. Ginger is going into Merv's new picture, "Gold-Diggers of 1933." He didn't know it though until Darryl Zanuck told him.

DID YOU KNOW—That Warren Hymer attended 17 prep schools before entering Yale?

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED by Will Lindhorst

CLEVER TRICK PERFORMED WITH ORDINARY RULER

With an ordinary ruler in your hand announce to your audience that, without the use of glue or other adhesive material, you will make the ruler stick to the palm of your hand. Merely as a pretense rub the ruler on your knee and place it across the palm of your left hand which is held in a horizontal position. Grasping the wrist with your right hand slowly elevate the left arm, turning the back of the hand to the audience, and placing the index finger of the right hand over the ruler. With the back of the hand turned toward the audience, it appears that the ruler is sticking to the hand.

LAST HALF RALLY IS WIN FOR Y. M. A. FIVE

(By T. M. Juno)

A strong second half rally by the Young Men's Association spelled victory for that club last night in a Bristol Basketball League fray as the Hawks dropped their third consecutive game of the second half. Final score was 45-28.

The first half of the tilt was interesting and close from the opening tip-off. At the end of the first period the count was deadlocked at 5 all. The second period saw the Y's pull a little to the front and at the half-time whistle the count stood: Y. M. A., 20; Hawks, 16.

It was the shooting of a novice, "Jimmy" Massilla, that kept the Hawks in the game during the first half. During this length of time, Massilla sunk in four field goals and for his night's work registered six double-deckers and a foul.

For the Y's it was the same old story, Lawrence and Bailey. Lawrence was fouled ten times and made good on nine of these tries. Besides, he hit the cords for four double-deckers, giving him seventeen tallies for the night. Bailey scored six times from the floor to raise his total points of the evening to twelve.

The Young Men's Association is now in second place in the league standing, winning three straight after losing their opening contest of the second half. The first half champions are back in their stride and proved it by their passing attack last night.

Thursday night, in addition to the regular scheduled league games there will be an exhibition fray between the Emille girls' team and the Edgely girls' team.

PICKS THE YANKEES TO WIN ANOTHER PENANT

(This is the first of a series of 16 articles by Pat Robinson analyzing the major league baseball clubs and outlining their prospects for the coming season.)

(By Pat Robinson)

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(INS)—It's not a bad rule to string along with a champion until beaten, and on that basis, if no other, one must pick the New York Yankees to grab at least one more flag in the American League.

On paper, the Yanks figure to be stronger than they were last year when they were good enough to out-distance the pack. The pitching staff will be stronger and better balanced and while there is real cause to doubt that Babe Ruth, Tony Lazzeri, Joe Sewell and Earl Combs will be as good as they were, one can only figure them on what they've done, not on what they may fail to do.

Let's look them over. Bill Dickey is still the best catcher in the game and improving steadily.

Ruffing, Gomez, Allen and Pipgras were good enough to win 75 games last season and should do as well this year. Danny MacPhayden was almost a total loss after the Yanks bought him from the Red Sox but he should come back as a winner.

Cy Moore, sinker ball fame, and Herb Pennock are surely tops as relievers. And Joe McCarthy should be able to pick a winning spot here and there for Don Brennan, Walter Brown and Russ Van Atta, three of the classiest rookies in the country.

Lou Gehrig is still the ace of first basemen. Tony Lazzeri may be slowing down but he was the best second sacker in the league last year. Frank Crosetti, who seems to have beaten Lya Lary out of the shortstop job, will be a hundred percent better. Joe Sewell showed signs of slipping last year but if he should waver Doc Farrell and Bill Webber, a fine looking prospect from Buffalo, are ready to take over the third base assignment.

You have seen better infielders, of course, but you have also seen many worse.

Will Babe Ruth and Earl Combs stand up? If Joe McCarthy could answer this question affirmatively he wouldn't have a care in the world. Joe knows Ben Chapman, the speed-bow, should improve and the other two will be great as long as they last. If either Ruth or Combs need a rest, the Yanks can fall back on Myril Hoag, one of the prize youngsters of the country, and Sam Byrd.

NEW LIFE INSTILLED, CO. GAME ASSOCIATION

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 31.—On the brink of disbandment because of a growing lack of interest on the part of a membership which once numbered 1500 and has dwindled to less than 200, "new life" was instilled in the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association at the thirty-seventh annual meeting held in 111th Regiment Armory, here.

Eighty members attended the "annual" in marked contrast to a "packed house" in previous years, but the 80 members pledged themselves to serve on a committee on membership and to secure at least one new member apiece by the next monthly meeting of the association.

When a vote was taken, following a spirited discussion as to whether the association should disband, it was unanimously agreed that the association should carry on even though no more than five members kept banded together to retain the name.

"The fine work of the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association is known throughout the state and nation," declared Dr. Frederick William Kraiker, of Philadelphia, "and certainly, it would be a shame to disband at this time just because there seems to be a lack of interest. Simply pep up your monthly meetings, get some new members and keep the good work going. There is plenty to do right now but by all means, do not fold up your books and quit. I have been a member of this association for many years. You must go along on an economic basis until you get over this inactive period and then we can stage a real comeback."

George MacReynolds, of Doylestown, who is one of the few surviving original members of the association, and who has served in various offices of the association from the start, asked to be relieved of the duties of the office of president in place of Dr. A. J. Strathie, of Newtown. It was announced however, that Dr. Strathie had refused the nomination and President MacReynolds was unanimously elected for another year.

Other officers elected are as follows: Vice-president, John H. Hohl-bain, New Britain; secretary and treasurer, Horace M. Mann; wardens, John H. Hohl-bain and Walter Fretz; executive committee, Harold J. Barndt, Dr. C. Louis Siegler, Harvey F. Snyder, A. R. Atkinson, Walter Fretz, Walter J. Lohr, Dr. T. P. H. Twadell, A. Y. Michie and Wilson Swartley.

After considerable discussion, in which President Judge Hiram H. Keller, of the Bucks county courts took part, it was decided by motion, to declare a moratorium on "back dues" and to allow all former members to start out again by payment of this year's dues.

Attractive monthly programs in an effort to get more than five or six members out to the meetings were urged by various members of the association gathered. Appointment of a live-wire program committee was one of the suggestions heard at the meeting.

Game Protector Warren Fretz, in a very instructive talk, explained in detail the outstanding benefits of "carrying on" the work of the association. The outstanding accomplishment of the association which is a monument to the efforts of the organization for all time, is the establishment of the 1500-acre game preserve in Bucks county, the only one in south-eastern Pennsylvania.

"It has been directly due to the efforts of the Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association over a period of years that the taxes of the game preserve land were paid, thus making it possible to have the preserve," declared Game Protector Fretz. "When the time arrived that the state had sufficient funds to carry on, where the association left off, we were relieved. Today we have one of the very finest preserves in the East. It is your preserve, established for your own pleasure. Let's carry on the fine work of this association, get in some new members, and plan an attractive program for the future."

Secretary Horace M. Mann assured the members that when better time arrive, it will again be possible to give a more interesting annual meeting with an attractive entertainment program, but that finances did not permit it this year.

Secretary Mann also submitted the annual financial report which showed a balance in the treasury amounting to $18.16 on December 31, 1932. The receipts during the year included $196 dues, Newtown camp balance, $27.15; lunch checks at annual meeting, $75.50; interest on investments, $36.38; refund on electric deposit, $6.78; received from Lambert show, $12.25. The expenditures were as follows: Expenses of annual meeting, $176.45; rent and expenses of headquarters room, $37.07; mounting swan, $8.00; miscellaneous expenses, $25.9.

Greetings from the very active Holmesburg Fish and Game Association were extended by Frank Brokel, president, who together with six other officers of the association, attended the meeting. Mr. Brokel congratulated the Bucks county association on its stand of deciding to "carry on," and offered the co-operation of the Holmesburg sportsmen in carrying out any project that might be of benefit to the sportsmen in general throughout the Bucks and Holmesburg district.

Wilbur H. Kramer, of Reading, traveling game protector, told the association members, "you cannot quit now, there is too much at stake." He advised the officers of the association to keep the interest at high pitch by putting members of the association to work. He advised them to give the individuals who have had nothing to do, something constructive to carry out.

Mr. Kramer suggested that a "crow shoot" similar to the ones staged in Montgomery county recently would be a fine thing for the Bucks county organization to stage in the near future. A vermin campaign was also suggested as another association project.

The Bucks County Fish, Game and Forestry Association can mould public opinion if you go about it correctly," Mr. Kramer declared. "I certainly want to see you carry on and I believe that if you get behind your president and give him united support, there will be a great revival of interest in this association."

A number of very interesting moving picture reels were shown by Rudolph H. Thompson, traveling lecturer for the Game Commission, showing wild life and a complete cycle of hunting life.

Two Great Goalies

(By BURNLEY)

John ROSS ROACH—CAPABLE LITTLE GOALIE OF THE DETROIT RED WINGS.

BURNLEY
1-31

THE FINE PLAY OF ROACH GUARDING THE NET WAS A LEADING FACTOR IN THE SENSATIONAL RISE OF THE RED WINGS.

Chuck GARDINER—of the Chicago Black Hawks—GENERALLY RATED AS THE GREATEST GOALIE IN THE GAME TODAY!

AT the present time the National Hockey League can boast of a wealth of brilliant goalkeepers. Such outstanding goalies as Chuck Gardiner of Chicago, "Runt" Worters of the Americans, John Ross Roach of the Detroit sextet and "Tiny" Thompson of Boston always make countless remarkable saves while guarding the net, and perhaps the much-discussed low-scoring games are largely due to the high calibre of the current goaltending all over the circuit.

Charles (Chuck) Gardiner, who stops 'em in front of the net for the Chicago Black Hawks, is usually regarded as the greatest of current goalies, and this year as usual he is performing brilliantly in charge of the Black Hawks' cage.

Two little fellows have been in the limelight of late—Roy ("Runt") Worters, the mighty mite who guards the net for the New York Americans, and John Ross Roach, the black-haired little chap who has been doing so well at the cage for the Detroit Red Wings this season.

Roach, who was formerly with the N. Y. Rangers, gained sweet revenge a couple of weeks ago when he stopped the 77 game scoring streak of his former team-mates. Johnny's sensational goal-tending prevented the Rangers from scoring a high-powered Patrick combination had gone for 77 straight games without suffering a shut-out.

When the Rangers sold little Johnny down the river to Detroit this Fall, it was almost similar to the case of a ball player being switched from the Yankees to the Red Sox.

Detroit didn't figure to get anywhere in the hockey scramble this year, while the Rangers are always a sure thing to make the play-offs. But things turned out surprisingly well for the Ranger cast-off. The Red Wings have proven the most sensational sextet of the present season, rolling up a long victory streak and going on a number of scoring rampages that made things rather easy for Roach at the net.

So little Johnny is well satisfied with the switch, after all. He is having a great year at the cage with a team that seems certain to make the play-offs and he has re-venge himself on the team that cast him off by snapping their boasted scoring streak. I ask you, what could be sweeter?

Meanwhile, "Runt" Worters, the midge, goalie of the Americans, has been playing a big part in the surprising rush to the top of the Americans, a team which was not regarded as a serious Stanley Cup threat before the season started.
